

Green Book 6th Edition FAQ

What are the big content updates in the Green Book 6th edition?

The new 6th edition content includes:

- A new section on tenants' post-pandemic rights pursuant to The Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act;
- Updates to the federal housing programs pursuant to the Housing Opportunity Through Modernization Act of 2016;
- Revised HUD inspection standards according to the 2023 National Standards for the Physical Inspection of Real Estate final rule;
- Critical information on affordable housing preservation with an updated section on the Rental Assistance Demonstration program;
- Additional key updates include the Violence Against Women Act 2022 Reauthorization, challenges to crime-free programs and nuisance property ordinances, advocate opportunities to influence the Affirmatively Furthering Fair Housing process, Section 504, Title VI and more!

How can I get a print copy of the Green Book?

The administrator of the Green Book subscription will receive a print copy of the 6th edition in February 2025. Please check your account to be sure your address is updated.

If you are not a current subscriber – subscribe now for immediate access to the digital version of the new 6th edition, and your print copy will arrive soon after.

I am a current subscriber, do I need to take any action?

Current subscriptions automatically have access to the updated digital content, and will soon receive a print copy of the 6th Edition. No action is needed on your part.

How do I subscribe to the Green Book?

A Green Book subscription can be purchased on our website, here.

How can I access the new edition of the Green Book?

The 6th edition updates will automatically upload to current subscribers' Digital Libraries. Subscribers just need to log in into the National Consumer Law Center's (NCLC) Digital Library, found here.

How do I use the digital library?

A quick start guide for the Digital Library can be found here. NCLC also provides an FAQ if you have any questions around administering your account.

How can I access documents on the Companion Website?

The National Housing Law Project is pleased to provide free access to Companion Website documents for your convenience. Companion Website documents contain a variety of resource materials cited in the Green Book, including unreported decisions, sub-regulatory guidance materials, and certain monographs. Readers of the print version will need to access the live links on the digital platform to view Companion Website materials.

Companion materials will be noted in the text and footnotes of the manual where "(Companion Website)" is referenced. In order to access the documents, readers of the print version must visit the link on the digital platform. Each link will take you to a separate file in Adobe Acrobat PDF or Word format.

Documents on the Companion Website in PDF will require either Adobe Reader or Adobe Acrobat software. For the greatest compatibility, download the latest version of Adobe Reader for free, at the Adobe website, www.adobe.com. Should you have problems accessing any of the documents on the Companion Website, please contact usat_publications@nhlp.org.

Help, I have another question!

For more information please visit our website or email publications@nhlp.org and we'll be happy to assist you.